Borsari Food Company

Borsari made the trip from Italy to America in 1914 she brought with her a few personal possessions and a wealth of culinary knowledge taught to her by her Mother and Grandmother. These were shared techniques and recipes that were passed from generation to generation and were particular to the various regions of Italy. One of these great recipes from Emilia we simply referred to as “Noni’s Salts”, or when speaking to those outside the family as the “secret ingredient”. In fact, this incredible concoction had the ability to impart deep flavor to just about anything and was responsible for making many meals taste so authentically Italian.

I had always been a great fan of “Noni’s Salts” and to this day the smells associated with this flavorful blend take me back to her pantry and all those pleasant memories – so many of them centered around food.
